The concert of December 18th, the last before Christmas, included Beethoven's seventh symphony, which was placed at the end of the programme, and was heard by a diminishing audience, for the concert was long. To this, as well as to Schumann's overture to Manfred, ample justice was done by the band, as well as to the bright and pleasing orchestration of Gernsheim's new concerto, in which M. Emile Sauret played the violin solo with considerable facility, good tone, and appreciative style. The concerto is well written, the andante affetuoso being full of melodious and pleasing individuality. The finale contains plenty of opportunity for the exhibition of "virtuosity," and this was made the most of by the clever violinist. He also played Vieuxtemps' "Ballade Polonaise" effectively. Mr. Oswald was the vocalist appearing in place of Mr. Herbert Reeves, who was unable to sing by reason of a cold.
