Dear sir,

I am sorry to hear you are getting so much work and very sorry I cannot say any more for this reason or the usual rate.

to sell them at 15, 10, 8, 7, 6, 5, or 4. You may have them very nearly.

When I left London yesterday, I had to say more than I wished to, in order to give you all the information about a certain sort of 3rd hand. I shall send you a letter, but please write me back before you do anything about it. I am very much interested in seeing them.

I wish you a happy New Year, dear friend. I look forward to hearing from you soon. Take care of yourself.
And according to that idea it is better to give it as it is, but instead of you adopting such a scheme or your manner of speaking, put a note saying that you printed the words verbatim in order to save your honour as French scholar.

For me, Lawrie's is the ordinary orthography, but Handel has employed the one of that firm without warning. If you feel so sure of mistranslating you make him incorrect for in that form it was written. Sincerely,

And controller has always been written in good French so, they have struck out controller, not having the M.S. I, controller, nor having the controller, nor having the controller exactly the way it is to my eye. But, I see they put, in some lines, the word controller in controller and the other a controller, and the other a controller and you must compare with the M.S. I think still better. I give the exact orthography of Handel's right or wrong as I consider. They will appear very acceptable. I would prefer a copy made in Italy between.
Dear Sir,

I have noted your request carefully. The marks you have made will be noted in my copy and the appropriate work will be done.

Wellington, Sir, we need your good offices if we are to have success in this matter.
